NATIONAL COUNCIL

Championing the art of the moving image

The background of the entire page is a photograph of a film set. In the foreground, several people are silhouetted against a bright light source. They appear to be operating equipment, possibly cameras or lighting rigs. In the background, a large, bright rectangular light fixture is suspended from the ceiling, casting a strong glow. The ceiling is made of dark wooden beams. The overall atmosphere is one of a professional, busy film production environment.

The American Film Institute champions the future of the moving image as an art form.

We believe in the revolutionary power of visual storytelling to share perspectives, inspire empathy and drive culture forward.

“The stuff that dreams are made of...”

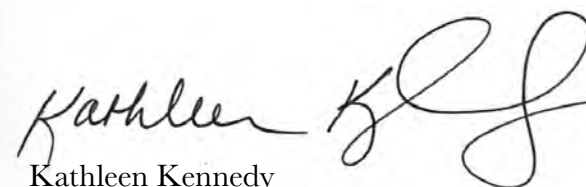

AFI was established to preserve and celebrate our nation’s proud film heritage and to ensure that excellence endures in this American art form. Over half a century later, we believe in the revolutionary power of film to bring us together as a nation — as a world — and we forge forward with an ongoing mission to educate and inspire.

And we do it with the support of people like you.

That’s where the AFI National Council comes in — a group that stands tall and proud in the motion picture community, leading by example through advocacy, influence and a unique alchemy of time, energy and financial support.

With a membership that includes passionate film-lovers — like you — the National Council is vital to the success of AFI’s mission. It is my personal hope that you will accept this invitation to join these leaders who believe in the importance of America’s art form and wish to make a difference.

Sincerely,

“Art is a nation’s most precious heritage. For it is in our works of art that we reveal to ourselves, and to others, the inner vision which guides us as a nation.”
